To the Editor:

The future prosperity of our state depends on a strong economy and a skilled, educated workforce. Neither will be possible without a strong public higher education system.

While Ohio has historically strong and nationally-recognized public universities, continued investments in the system are essential to ensure the continued growth and success of these institutions and the state as a whole.

Public higher education is a proven engine of growth and opportunity and should therefore be a top policy priority for our state legislature and our future Governor.

For more information about the impact and value of higher education in Ohio, I encourage you visit www.forwardohio.org. If you are impressed and inspired by what you find on the website, consider contacting your local state legislators and the two candidates for Governor of Ohio and asking them to make support for higher education a top priority in their policymaking and campaigning.
